

A MINI GUIDE TO HELP YOU
FEED YOUR DOG WITH GI ISSUES

FEEDING YOUR DOG WITH CHRONIC SENSITIVE STOMACH

THE PETS DIGEST

Should You Feed it?

CHOOSING A TREAT

Making the best selection

LOW FAT

FIVE TO SEVEN PERCENT

reach for treats that are preferably 5% or less but no more than 7% fat. This is especially true for dogs suffering from chronic pancreatitis

SMALL SIZE

BREAK IT UP

If they are large treats, break them down into smaller pieces for your pup, unless it is just an extremely small bite sized treat

HARD

OPT FOR HARDER

Opt for harder treats over softer ones as this will take more time to chew through. This is especially helpful if your dog is food motivated

ALL NATURAL

GO AU NATURELE

Steer more towards natural treats for my pup, such as dried sweet potato skins or other chews

HOMEMADE

PAY FOR IT

Make your own treats using the recipes on thepetsdigest.com or give them veggies like carrots and apples (without the skin)

LIMITED

LIMITED INGREDIENT

Look for treats that are very limited in ingredients, if they are meat based opt for chicken or lamb treats

FOOD LIST

like

Dislike

10 THINGS TO AVOID WHEN FEEDING YOUR DOG WITH SENSITIVE STOMACH

1. FOODS HIGH IN FAT (MORE THAN 7%)
2. NOT FEEDING A SENSITIVE STOMACH DIET
3. NOT BOILING THE FAT OUT OF MEATS
4. GIVING TABLE SCRAPS
5. INCREASING STRESS
6. SWITCHING FOODS TOO QUICKLY
7. FOODS WITH A LOT OF INGREDIENTS
8. NOT GIVING A CANINE PROBIOTIC
9. OVERFEEDING
10. GIVING FOODS WITH ARTIFICIAL INGREDIENTS

5 THINGS

you should always have on hand

ACTIVATED CHARCOAL

Activated charcoal is also known as active carbon, absorbent charcoal, or activated carbon. Many times vets add it to a dog's treatments that came into the clinic for pancreatitis. It is used for detoxification and absorption of toxins in the intestines

HYDROGEN PEROXIDE

Three percent hydrogen peroxide can be used to induce vomiting in dogs that have eaten something that may upset their stomach. This is to get the toxins out of their systems quickly.

UNFLAVORED PEDIALYTE

Pedialyte has a ton of electrolytes that can be used to assist with dehydration in dogs that occurs due to vomiting and diarrhea.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

If your dog has a relapse having emergency numbers on hand where you can easily find them is great to have so you don't have to search around in a panic.

PET CARE

VETERINARIAN

--

MEDICATIONS

NAME	DOSE	TIMES/DAY	ROUTE

PREVENTATIVE CARE

	HEARTWORM	FLEAS	TICKS	GROOM
JAN
FEB
MAR
APR
MAY JUNE
JULY
AUG
SEPT
OCT
NOV
DEC

ANNUAL VACCINES DUE: